Narrative Description

(Describe the historic and current physical appearance and condition of the property. Describe contributing and noncontributing resources if applicable. Begin with a summary paragraph that briefly describes the general characteristics of the property, such as its location, type, style, method of construction, setting, size, and significant features. Indicate whether the property has historic integrity.)

Summary Paragraph

Honoka'a Directional Terms: makai (downside, toward the ocean, roughly to the north) mauka (uphill, toward the mountains, roughly to the south) Waipi'o/Waipi'o side (roughly to Waipi'o Valley on the west) Hilo/Hilo side (roughly to Hilo on the east)

The Honoka'a Public Library is a single story, Hawaiian style building which sits on a State owned, 2.4793 acre, sloping lot on the makai side of Māmane Street. The building is part of a nine-building, State-owned complex, that occupies a legal single civic center parcel. The library and four other State Department of Health buildings are over 50 years of age. But for purposes of this nomination we are only talking about the library, as the Department of Education library and the Department of Health are entirely separate entities. The library sits across the street from the Honoka'a High School, and as such contributes to the civic core of the town, along with the other separate and non-historic civic buildings for the police, fire, and court house on the makai side of Māmane Street.

The library is located almost at the Hilo end of Māmane Street, a street lined primarily with commercial buildings. The library has a narrow landscaped front lawn, similar to the other makai-side state buildings fronting Māmane Street. These setbacks, and that on the mauka steep slope of the Honoka'a High School present a welcoming viewing plane when one enters the town from Hilo. The library sits on a post-and-pier foundation with a vertical slat apron on its two sides and rear, elevating to conform with the sloping topography. The walls are of horizontal lap siding and it features a corrugated metal double-pitched hipped roof with open, overhanging eaves with exposed rafter tails. The façade is characterized by a centered projecting front lānai, which gives the building a Latin cross floor plan. This Hawaiian planation-vernacular style building is in excellent condition and retains its historic integrity of location, type, style, design, method of construction, materials, setting, size and significant features, craftsmanship, feeling and association.

Narrative Description

The Honoka'a Library's 86-foot long façade runs parallel to Māmane Street with a concrete walkway leading from the public sidewalk to the building's front lānai. Two concrete steps, with the front of their treads finished in brick, lead up to the lānai. At both ends of the lower step are metal boot scrapers.

The building is five bays wide, with the lānai presiding over the center three. The bays to either side of the lānai each contain two 6 x 6 double-hung sash windows. The lānai is characterized by four pairs of widely spaced 6" x 6" columns, beveled on their front faces. A trellis-like panel is affixed to the front of each pair of columns, and a lattice work of large squares runs across the top of the lānai's front face in ginger bread fashion. The Waipi'o end of the lānai is enclosed by a large diamond pattern lattice with a centered, broken oval accent. On the Hilo side of the lānai is a non-historic concrete, ADA ramp which unobtrusively runs parallel to this side of the façade and wraps around the building to a rear handicapped parking area.

The lānai has a scored concrete floor and a tongue and groove ceiling. The lānai's rear wall features a centered doorway, which has been modified for ADA purposes. It has a single twelvepane door with a six-pane sidelight to the right (Hilo side). A ten-pane fixed transom surmounts the door and window. The bays to either side of the entry bay each have a 6 x 6 double-hung sash window.

The front door opens on a T-shaped space, with an 88' long open space running the length of the building, encompassing all of the rear wing. A large beam demarcates the lobby from the rear wing's open space, which serves as the library's primary reading room and stacks. The reading room has an exposed beam, coved ceiling, tongue and groove walls, and an asbestos tile floor. Wood bookcases line the walls. In addition to the open shelving there is also a glass enclosed bookcase, and built-in document files. Five 6 x 6 double-hung sash windows, in each of the side walls, provide natural ventilation and illumination to this space. At the far end of the space is a fireplace with a brick hearth. A modern sconce is to either side of the fireplace. Bookshelves presently stand in front of the fireplace obscuring a view of it. Throughout the library's public areas, the walls and bookcases have a green wash applied to them.

The front wing to the Waipi'o side of the entry houses the rest rooms. An opening without a door accesses a front-to-rear running hall which has a pair of doors on its Waipi'o wall that enter the men's and women's rooms, and another door at the back end of the hall which services a storage room. None of the doors are original. The men's room has a pair of 6 x6 double-hung sash windows in its front wall, while the women's room features one window of a similar style. The storage room has two pairs of casement windows, each with three horizontal panes in its makai (ocean facing) wall.

A circulation/service counter runs in front of the Hilo side front wing. This wing houses the children's collection. This wing has a canec ceiling with exposed beams and tongue-and-groove walls. There are a pair of 6×6 double-hung sash windows in its end wall, as well as its makai side wall, and two such windows in its front wall.

The Honoka'a Public Library remains very much intact, with the addition of the ADA ramp being the only alteration on its exterior. On the interior, the building also maintains a very high degree of integrity. The historic library space and its architectural elements remain, and the only changes are the air conditioning of the building, the use of fluorescent lights, and the installation of ADA bathrooms, none of which intrude upon the historic character.

Statement of Significance Summary Paragraph (Provide a summary paragraph that includes level of significance, applicable criteria, justification for the period of significance, and any applicable criteria considerations.)

Areas of significance

Criterion A

The Honoka'a Public Library is an educational, cultural, and social intellectual hub of the community, and has been such since its erection in 1937. It is significant at the local level under Criterion A under the theme history of education as "the process of conveying or acquiring knowledge or skills"—under the Superintendent of Education, now the Department of Education. The period of significance is associated with historic trends directly related to the commercial development of Honoka'a Town, and is associated with the increased enrollment at Honoka'a School as it expanded to include Honoka'a Junior High School. The library facilitated the desires of many second-generation Hāmākua residents intent on receiving scholarly recognition and in preparing themselves for employment in the professional classes through education.

Criterion C

The library building is also significant at the local level under Criterion C in its contribution to Hawaiian architectural design and construction. It is a Hawaiian plantation-style vernacular building, which importantly serves the needs of the community as an educational, social, and cultural venue.

Justification of the Period of Significance

The period of significance began with the 1937 completion of the current Honoka'a Public Library building and continues up to 1968, the 50-year mark, and recognizes the library's continuing significance as an important center of educational, social, and cultural activity for the Honoka'a community. The 1937–1968 period of significance was chosen as 1937 is the year the building was completed, and 1968 closes the historical period.

The Honoka'a Public Library building is historically important under Criterion A in meeting the educational and community needs of second-generation populations in Honoka'a Town and the Hāmākua area. In the library's early iterations at the Sakata Building and the Honoka'a Union Church, the town library served as a place of education and community gathering, and the Honoka'a Public Library building quickly became equally important as a social center in the community, providing both a library and meeting hall facilities for the community. In 1937, the new government public library greatly expanded the educational and social center opportunities for the community.

This property might have been settled by people on the larger 4+ acres of sloping ground makai of the Government Road. There were nearby Land Commission Awardees likely to have settlements on their property. However, there are no discernable perennial streams or springs, so it is likely that there were no, or limited, agricultural efforts on the property. As mentioned in the Honoka'a MPS context document, during the pre-contact period, the bulk of Native Hawaiians living along the Hāmākua Coast resided in or near Waipi'o Valley, not the uplands along the coast. In 1848, the Buke Mahele "Lands of Aliis and Chiefs (p. 17) recorded Land Commission Award 9971*H–Apana 5–All of Pa'alalea 1 and 2 Ahupua'a–122.3 acres–a portion of that property now occupied by the Library was part of that grant. By 1854 the property had become government land. When the Civic Center property was officially designated in 1930, the area was probably bulldozed to level the land closest to the Government Road and then bulldozed down-slope to create another terraced level area makai. The Waipi'o side of the property had an "Old Japanese School" or "Abandoned Japanese School," but there was no discernable building on the library lot itself.

The Hawai'i Public Library–Honoka'a Branch building is perhaps the only building to have been erected on the library lot site. The government selected Hawaiian architect Harry Ka'ōnohi Stewart to create a Hawaiian style building that would truly represent the Honoka'a Town rural community and the Territory of Hawai'i.

The Hawaiian style of architecture was developed in the mid-1920s, and popularized by such well-known architects as C.W. Dickey. This Hawaiian style of architecture is characterized by its double-pitched hip roof, use of casement or sliding windows, the presence of lanai, the use of local materials, and an emphasis on cross ventilation and indoor-outdoor relationships. The character of these buildings derives from their simple massing and dominant roof, rather than applied ornamentation. (This architectural style is evident in the library's twin, the Moloka'i Public Library.) The Honoka'a Public Library is significant at the local level under Criterion C as a good example of a Hawaiian style building constructed in a rural community on the island of Hawai'i during the 1930s. It is typical of its period in its use of materials, method of construction, craftsmanship, and design. The Honoka'a Public Library property meets the registration requirements set for the in the Historical and Architectural Resources of Honoka'a Town, Hāmākua District, Hawai'i Island, Hawai'i MPS: this Hawaiian plantation-vernacular style building is in excellent condition and has only been slightly modified to meet ADA standards such as the entrance ramp, the bathrooms, and also fluorescent lighting. It retains its historical integrity in terms of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling and association.

Narrative Statement of Significance (Provide at least one paragraph for each area of significance.)

Background History

Historical Events

In 1933 the freshman class of Honoka'a Intermediate School, under the direction of teacher John Reineke, undertook an amazing social study of Honoka'a Town and the surrounding Hāmākua area. This was as scholarly a document matching any in Hawai'i in the 1930s. At that time, there was no high school and only those who wished to continue their education at Hilo High School or McKinley High School on O'ahu boarded near the schools. As Honoka'a Town grew, an increasing number of the professional classes of civil servants, engineers, doctors and dentists, and teachers came. Fraternal orders, ethnic organizations, and the Hāmākua Women's Club were established. There were well-attended lectures given by traveling clergy and others at the Lyceum (once located on the mauka side of the Government Road on the site of the present Honoka'a High School). During the 1920s and 1930s there was a spirit that education and learned enlightenment in Honoka'a was to be fostered. Small libraries in the Sakata Building and the New Union Church sprung up.

Property History

The main property transfers occurred in this order: in 1848 LCA 09971*H in Pa'alaea Ahupua'a was recorded in the Buke Mahele–King Kamehameha III granted to William Pitt Leleiohoku vast land holdings of 122.3 acres; in approximately 1854 (Land Commission Awards Location Index), some of these properties were relinquished to the Government, including the whole Pa'alaea Ahupua'a 1 and 2.

Beginning in 1848 through the 1850s, the western-educated and progressive King Kamehameha III, (Kauikeaouli) under pressure from residents, foreigners, and planters who could only lease land from the Crown, and to insure that the dwindling population of Native Hawaiians retained land as an asset, instituted the Mahele ("Dividing"). The Mahele introduced private land ownership by distributing land to the Crown, the ali 'i, and the maka 'āinana or common people. All lands could now be sold, passed on, inherited, or leased¹. Chief William Pitt Leleiohoku I was a Hawaiian noble during the reign of Kamehameha II (Liholiho). Chief Leleiohoku married two high ali 'i: Princesses Nāhi ena ena and Luka (Ruth) Ke elikōlani. He served as Royal Governor of Hawai'i Island. He and Princess Ruth had a son, Prince William John Pitt Leileiohoku II, born in December 1842. Chief William Pitt Leileiohoku I died on October 2, 1848 at the age of 27 during a measles epidemic². On January 29, 1855, Kamehameha awarded William Pitt Leileiohoku II 122.3 acres in Honoka'a. On June 15, 1850, the 8-year old Prince William II received his father's estate, which his mother Princess Luka (Ruth) managed as guardian and trustee. William John Leleiohoku II died on September 9, 1859 at the age of 17, leaving Princess Luka (Ruth) sole heir to his lands.

On August 7, 1874, Princess Luka (Ruth) sold Pa'alaea 1 & 2 to rancher Samuel Parker Jr. of Parker Ranch³.

On September 25, 1899, Samuel Parker sold the 92.95 acres to Honoka'a Sugar Company. On October 10, 1916, the Honoka'a Sugar Company and the Territory exchanged lands. The Territory acquired an 11-acre parcel of RP 9971:5 in the exchange that would later be divided by Executive Orders for a variety of purposes.

The 1912 Historic Field 19 map created by the C.E. Office Survey showed 4 acres demarked for the School Lot–the site of the future Honoka'a Library. Also, the 1912 Hawai'i Territory Survey of Ka'ao Homesteads map (Reg 2548WIDE) demarked the property as "Honoka'a School Lot Executive Order No. 409 Site for Tax Office Court House, and in 1921 a blueprint map demarked the property as Honoka'a School Lot Jail.

Later a 1928, blueprint map marked part of the Waipi'o side of the government property as "Old Honoka'a School Lot and even "Abandoned School Lot."

1914 (UPDATED 1955) SANBORN FIRE INSURANCE MAP

This 1914 (updated 1955) Sanborn Fire Insurance map (above) shows the three library locations. The Kukuihaele/Waipi'o side of the Sakata Building (demarked in blue) served as the first library location. The second location, and the building architect Frank Arakawa specifically designed with a library room and a community space, was located in the 1927 New Union Church (demarked in green). The 1937 permanent community library, designed by architect Harry Ka'ōnohi Stewart, is located on the grounds of the Civic Center (demarked in red).

The Sakata Building Site

There is only anecdotal reporting of the library's first location in the Sakata Building, and not much as remembered except that it was located in the Kukuihaele side of the building. There was no library or librarian found in the 1913 business directory (later directories have not been made available at this time). Prior to, or along with the Sakata Building library, the Honoka'a Lyceum provided edification for the community. Its events were very successful. The "Lyceum in Honoka'a serves as the gathering place for the three communities of Pā'auhau , Honoka'a and Kukuihaele [and] as the building has proved too small[,] a plan is [a]foot to enlarge it" (The Friend 1902: 282). During the time, the Lyceum activities were many, such as lectures given by visitors traveling around the island.

Honoka'a School was founded in 1889 and as the population grew, so too did the school grow. It expanded to Honoka'a Intermediate in the 1930s. and to Honoka'a High School in the late 1930s.

On February 16, 1927, the Hilo Tribune-Herald recorded that: "This building will be a combination chapel, social hall, and library building, to be used by Honoka'a as a community center....The other side of the building from the chapel will be the library, a room 16 by 23 feet. A feature of the room will be the stone fireplace. The branch library maintained in this community has served so popular that it was decided to remain in the new building to permanently house the Honoka'a branch library."

In February 19, 1927, the Hilo Tribune-Herald announced that Honoka'a contractor M. Okura was the low bidder to construct the new Honoka'a Unions Church building. "And it will serve as the community center for the district." Further, on June 4, 1927, the newspaper reported that it will be erected "for the spiritual, educational, and social welfare of all the people."

Both these photos (above and below) were taken after Reverend Howard N. Smith's arrival in Honoka'a in 1921, but before the opening of the new Church Building in 1927. Note the distant Victorian carpenter gothic building which is entitled "Chapel" indicating that the grounds were both church and library grounds before 1927. Reverend Smith stands behind the Cottage Chapel Honoka'a Union Church sign.

1923 Mrs. Howard N. Smith was listed in a business directory as librarian on the church grounds so her dedication as a librarian extended at least to 1927 as can be discerned from business directories. So, when the new library opened in 1927 Mrs. Howard N. Smith and her husband moved all the books and other library items from the earlier church building to the new one. They opened the church library room every afternoon from 2 to 5 pm.

In a 1927 newspaper article entitled "Honoka'a Church to Be Dedicated," "the New Union Church (now United Methodist Church) was officially opened: "In addition to the community hall maintained by the church, a boarding home for boys and girls is operated as well as is a branch of the Hilo Library. Tomorrow will be the official opening of the new library room with Mrs. Welch, Hilo Librarian and Miss Danielson, the Hilo library storyteller in charge." Mrs. Jean Fraser is also listed as librarian in the 1933 "Study of Honoka'a Community in Hawai'i by Mary Han and Vivien Botelho," under the direction of John Reineke at Honoka'a Intermediate School.

LIBRARY IS CREDIT TO HAWAH ISLAND Honokaa Branch Up-to-Date In All Ways, Popular In Outlying Area Occupying a room in the new community building, the Honokaa brauch" library, is a credit to the district, in the opinion of Mrs. Isabel Welsh, li-, brarian of the Hilo public library, who with Miss Ella Danielson, juvenile librarian, and Miss Constance Clark, of the childgen's department of the Honolulu library; has concluded a trip around the island. "The new library is one of the best and most up-to-date of Island libraries and is being patronized by residents from many miles around," declared Mrs. Welsh. 12 Finished in a .French gray stain with furniture to match the interior is very attractive. A big fireplace occupies one end of the room and at either side are big easy Windsor chairs. and the set Rev. and Mrs. Howard N. Smith are in charge of the library which is open every afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock. The visiting librarians held a story hour at the Honokaa library Saturday morning and told many stories to the group of interested children who crowded the library room. Mrs. Weish and party visited all the school libraries in the Kona and Kohala districts.

The Hāmākua Women's Club advocated for a new library. At that time Mrs. Jean Fraser, wife of bank cashier and later bank manager, a pillar of the community as teacher and later principal of Honoka'a School, spearheaded the efforts to obtain funds to build a new permanent library.

1935 Senator Charles H. Silva wrote this letter below, bracing Mrs. Jean Fraser for the Territory of Hawai'i's inability to fund the new library project at that time. Silva optimistically included "An Act" below spelling out the appropriation that was yet to come.

In 1935, the Hāmākua Women's club persisted, and obtained territorial funding. With help from the Works Progress Administration Harry Ka'ōnohi Stewart was selected as architect, and he hired T. Takemoto as contractor. (The letter is incorrectly addressed to Mrs. F. Frasier. The correct spelling should have been Mrs. F. Fraser.)

Historical Events at the Library

For a period of time, the Hāmākua Women's Club used the children's room as its meeting location. Later, during World War II, the USO wanted to use the children's room for its activities. But it outgrew the small space and then wanted to use the main library room. This was rejected as being too impactful on the library-going public.

The Hāmākua Women's Club staged fund-raisers to support the library–examples below from the late 1930s or early 1940s.

Over the years the library or other groups such as the Statewide Cultural Extension Program have sponsored programs and talks aimed at bringing more community people into the library. Recently the library has been hosting Western Week lectures by the Historic Honoka'a Project and others about the history of Honoka'a.

In 1971, Ruby Johnson, University of Hawai'i– Mānoa Professor of Hawaiian Language spoke on Hawaiian folklore and legends. This talk was sponsored by the Statewide Cultural Extension Program.

Outreach continues to welcome community members in the library, as seen in the next three photos. The library has 3,040 square feet of space in a cruciform-shape. As can be seen in the photographs, the facility, located near Honoka'a School, is popular with students. The building is literally packed with books, employing high shelves to make the most of the space available.

The friendly and popular neighborhood bookmobile brought books to communities distant from Honoka'a Town. These "books on wheels" programs are especially important in rural communities during summer months because they encourage children to make good use of their time, facilitate recreational reading, and make additional materials available for summer school projects. Featured is Gwynne G. Logan, Waimea Area Librarian, in the Hāmākua Bookmobile, 1981.

In 2000 Tahirih Foster, Branch Manager at the Honoka'a Library discovered the entire valuable file of the library's newspaper clippings about the sugar plantation was missing. She spread the word throughout the community and about 90% of the clippings turned up in the book drop one morning—it is not known if the other 10% were returned.

People Associated with the Library

Reverend Howard N. Smith and Librarian Mrs. Howard N. Smith

Reverend Howard N. Smith FROM THE SUNDAY SCHOOL CENTURY: CONTAINING A HISTORY OF THE CONGREGATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL, 1918, P. 113 BY WILLIAM EWING.

The Congregational Church was well attended when Howard N. Smith was appointed in 1921 to head the Sunday school and other educational projects. Prior, he had served as a Pacific Region superintendent for 12 years beginning in 1902, and then was appointed to Honoka'a from 1921-1929.

One of the earlier carpenter gothic church buildings on the property accommodated the library. Mrs. Howard N. Smith served for many years as librarian in Honoka'a Town. Mrs. Smith must have been working right along-side of her pastor husband as she was credited as the librarian in Hawai'i business directories of 1923, -24, and -26 (1925 directory not available). In 1927 the Smith's would have moved all books and other library items from the older building on the Honoka'a Union Church property to the new 1927 library and community room in the new church building. She likely continued serving as librarian through the term of her husband's ministry into 1929 (or perhaps longer).

Mrs. Smith was no longer listed in 1929 directory though Rev Smith was still at his post, now in the new Honoka'a Union Church.

Mrs. Jean P. Fraser and the Hāmākua Women's Club

Mrs. Jean P. Fraser was the wife of bank cashier and manager Frank Fraser. As such, she was a prominent woman in town. But she was also a teacher, and possibly the principal, at Honoka'a School. She wrote a letter (no longer extant) to Territorial Senator Charles Silva on behalf of the Hāmākua Women's Club requesting legislative funding for a permanent library for the growing town.

Hawai'I, Hawai'i County and State

From the May 2, 1939 Honolulu Advertiser obituary.

Harry Ka'ōnohi Stewart was born in Halawa, North Kohala in 1896.

In the 1910 census, his father is listed as Canada-British (in the 1930 census his father is listed as from Scotland). It is not known when Harry first entered Kamehameha Schools, but he graduated in 1915.

On the 1930 census Stewart is listed as a Honolulu City and County building inspector.

As noted in a 1930 article, Stewart was Superintendent of Buildings, and in 1935 he was appointed Territorial Architect. In 1937 he was officially titled Architect for the Department of Public Works. During the late 1930s, he designed a number of buildings in Hawai'i funded by the Public Works Administration (PWA). Besides the Honoka'a Library and its twin, the Moloka'i Public Library (1937), he designed the Attorney General's Office/Tax Office on Queen Street in Honolulu, formerly known as Hale Auhau [tax house] (1937), and the main structures for Baldwin High School on Maui (1938-39). He died in 1939 at the age of 43.

Conclusion

Criterion A

The Honoka'a Public Library is significant at the local level under Criterion A for properties as a resource significant under a theme in the history of education "the process of conveying or acquiring knowledge or skills," under the Superintendent of Education (now the Department of Education). The period of significance associated with this historic trend is directly connected

Hawai'l, Hawai'i

County and State

Hawai'I, Hawai'i County and State

with the commercial development of Honoka'a Town and associated with the expansion of Honoka'a School as the school-age population expanded to include Honoka'a Junior High School education. Those especially second generation residents preparing themselves for the professional classes. The property is significant as an intellectual, cultural, social, and cultural venue, and for its Hawaiian style architectural design and construction.

The period of significance began with the 1937 completion of the current Honoka'a Public Library building and continued up to 1968, the 50-year mark, recognizing the library's continuing significance as an important center of educational, social, and cultural activity for the Honoka'a community.

The building is historically important in its function to meet the educational and community needs of second generation populations in Honoka'a Town and the Hāmākua area. In its early iterations at the Sakata Building and the Honoka'a Union Church, the town library served as a place of education and community gathering. The Honoka'a Public Library–Honoka'a is equally important as a social center in the community, providing both a library and meeting hall facilities for the community.

Criterion C

The Honoka'a Public Library is significant at the local level under Criterion C as an excellent example of a Hawaiian plantation-style vernacular building constructed in a rural community on the island of Hawai'i during the 1930s. It is typical of its period in its use of materials, method of construction, craftsmanship, and design.

The Hawaiian style of architecture is characterized by its double-pitched hip roof, use of casement or sliding windows, the presence of lānai, the use of local materials, and an emphasis on cross ventilation and indoor-outdoor relationships. The character of these buildings derives from their simple massing and dominant roof, rather than applied ornamentation.

The Hawaiian style of architecture was developed in the mid-1920s at a time when members of Hawai'i's architectural society were seeking a style of architecture appropriate for the Islands. Honolulu architect C.W. Dickey introduced the style in 1926 in the Halekūlani cottages (no longer extant). These buildings had enclosed lānai, lava rock post-and-pier foundations, lava rock columns, casement windows, and gracefully sloping, double-pitched hipped roofs which became known as the "Hawaiian" or "Dickey" roof. Concerning the Halekūlani cottages, the March 14, 1926 Honolulu Advertiser quoted Dickey as saying, "I believe I have achieved a distinctive Hawaiian type of architecture." The style continued to be utilized throughout the 1930s, with other architects such as Ralph Fishbourne, Claude Stiehl, and Harry Sims Bent embracing the style, as also did such Public Works Department architects as Bjorn Dahl and Harry Ka'ōnohi Stewart.

The Honoka'a Public Library is a fine example of Hawaiian plantation-style vernacular building as rendered in wood, reflecting the materials and carpentry skills available at the time of construction. It also illustrates the increasing education levels of second-generation families whose members were entering professions such as teaching, engineering, and architecture.

Efforts to have a public library building constructed in Honoka'a began in the late 1920s and early 1930s, as Honoka'a was the largest branch of the Hilo Public Library. Due to a lack of money during these early Depression Era years the project was stymied. However, the 1935 Territorial Legislature included funding for the library and in early 1936 Public Works architect Harry Ka'ōnohi Stewart commenced designing the building. The new, $17,000 building opened in June 1937. The Honoka'a Public Library well reflected the adaptation of the forms initially set forth by Dickey and conveys the basic premises Dickey laid out with the Halekūlani cottages. These include: the double-pitched hipped roof, a strong sense of cross ventilation facilitated by its cruciform plan, and a prominent lānai. The double-hung sash windows used in the building are larger than usual to further facilitate ventilation. The character of the library derives from its simple massing with its dominant roof, rather than applied ornamentation. The casual classicism of the library's symmetric massing and centered lānai, coupled with its size and setting, indicates the building to be of some import, while the flow of its roofline places it under the sway of the islands. Its quiet repose and simple harmony convey lessons in culture and the arts as positive as any revealed by the books housed within its warm interior with its stained 12" tongue and groove walls.

Other buildings in the style listed in either the Hawai'i or National Registers of Historic Places include: the Alexander & Baldwin Building (Hawai'i and National Register), U.S. Immigration Station (National Register), the Public Library and Territorial Office building in Wailuku (Hawai'i and National Register), Mabel Smyth Memorial Building at Queen's Hospital (Hawai'i and National Register), the 'Ewa Plantation Administration Building (Hawai'i Register), and a large number of private residences. Examples of public buildings utilizing the style during the 1930s include a number of buildings designed by Dahl at Kalaupapa (National Register), the Pineapple Research Institute and Fruit Fly Experiment Station both at the University of Hawai'i (Hawai'i Register of Historic Places), and the Moloka'i Public Library. Indeed, the librarian on Moloka'i was sufficiently impressed with the Honoka'a Library that she requested the same plan be utilized in the design and building of the new library on that island.

Honoka'a is not the seat of county government for the island of Hawai'i, nor has it ever been. Therefore, the number of public buildings in the town is limited to a post office, police station, fire station, library, and certain government offices. The sole surviving pre-World War II civic buildings in Honoka'a are the public library and the former Department of Health headquarters for public nursing services. The former is rendered in a Hawaiian style of architecture with a double pitched hipped roof, and the latter is a modest plantation style building with single wall construction and a corrugated metal hipped roof. Both of these buildings contribute to the pre-World War II historic character of Māmane Street. Post-World War II buildings are rendered in a modern style with masonry construction, with the exception of State Office Building Number 2 which follows a modern Hawaiian style with its steeply-pitched double hipped roof.

The Honoka'a Public Library retains its historical integrity in terms of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling and association.

Significance Eligibility under Criteria A and C

Government buildings built during the period of significance (1937–1968) in Honoka'a reflect the development of Honoka'a as a town center serving the rural areas surrounding it. As such they are eligible for inclusion in the Hawai'i and National Registers of Historic Places at the local level under Criterion A, for their association with the development of Honoka'a. As a property type they are recognizable in their physical characteristics, including building configurations and layout, proportions, and stylistic influences, which reflect the buildings' original functions and construction periods.

The government buildings in Honoka'a are also significant under Criterion C for their architecture, as they embody the materials, designs, construction methods, and workmanship typical of their place and times. The library follows a Hawaiian style of architecture originally developed by C.W. Dickey in 1926, which remained popular through the 1930s. It is characterized by a double-pitched hipped roof, the use of lanai and ample windows for ventilation. The beauty of the building derived from its massing and profile rather than applied ornamentation. It bestowed a dignity and grace to the library appropriate to its role in the community. The Department of Health office building is a more utilitarian form, embracing the construction methods, materials and forms found in plantation architecture of the period, with its post and pier foundation, single wall construction and hipped corrugated metal roof with overhanging eaves and exposed rafter tails. Those buildings constructed in the second half of the twentieth century are more substantial in their use of masonry materials and reflect the modern style which predominated during this period. State Office Building Number 2 differs from the norm as it is situated directly on Māmane Street so it strives to integrate itself with the pre-World

Hawai'l. Hawai'i County and State

Hawai'I, Hawai'i County and State

War II government buildings on Māmane Street, while using modern materials. Additionally, some buildings may represent the work of notable architects or builders, such as Harry Ka'ōnohi Stewart, the head of the Territorial Department of Public Works during the late 1930s. As such they are eligible for inclusion in the Hawai'i and National Registers of Historic Places at the local level under Criterion C.

Registration Requirements

To be eligible for listing on the Hawai'i and National Registers, a governmental building must convey its sense of historic character through structural and associative integrity, must have documented historical significance within the contexts of the development of Honoka'a, and must fall within the physical boundaries set in this document. The Honoka'a Library building has not been moved, thus it retains its integrity of location and setting, as well as feeling and associations. Architectural assessments thus will revolve around a building's integrity of design, materials and workmanship.

For government buildings in Honoka'a their massing and profile as viewed from the street is a primary character defining element. These should remain intact, with any additions being in scale and built in manner to not distract from the main building, preferably off the rear. Also, elements, such as lānai should not be enclosed. Because of the simple character of the buildings, much of their character also derives from their materials, so it is important that the original wall material is present, although individual boards may be replaced if no longer serviceable. While the roof is an important element of the building the replacement of their original materials should not be cause for disqualification so long as the roof form remains intact. The presence of historic or in-kind roof materials should result in a more favorable rating of integrity for the building as a whole, increasing the probability of acceptance to the Hawai'i and National Registers. Other integrity considerations for Honoka'a's governmental buildings include:

1. The façades should retain sufficient exterior integrity to convey a sense of its original design and architectural detailing. Doors and windows should be historic in their character, although the replacement of original windows with jalousie windows may be historic in their own right. Inkind window replacement is also permissible. Also, if a façade has an overall strong sense of design and integrity, the presence of one out-of-character element, such as an aluminum door, should not be cause for ineligibility.

2. The preservation, restoration, and/or rehabilitation of original interior spaces (spatial arrangements, configurations, and materials) is highly recommended, especially with regard to the library with its bookcases along the perimeter of the room, with the main room serving as a reading area as well as librarian public service area. However, it is recognized that functional requirements may result in some interior modifications, especially with regards to administrative office use. Given this consideration, the presence of intact floor plans should result in a more favorable rating of integrity for the building as a whole, increasing the probability of acceptance to the Hawai'i and National Registers. Similarly, the presence on the interior of original floor, wall, and ceiling materials contributes to the historic feel of a building and should result in a more favorable rating of integrity for the building as a whole. Removal of some original partition walls or the addition of new partition walls, and the addition of some doors should not be cause for disqualification, especially when occurring in less public parts of the building. The modification of restrooms or fire station kitchens also should not be cause for disqualification. Although the absence of original fixtures, such as doors, cabinets, office and counters, bathroom fixtures, ceiling light fixtures, and the like should not disqualify the building from Hawai'i and National Register consideration, their presence adds strength to the overall rating of integrity. Similarly, interior window openings such as transoms and hall windows contribute to eligibility.

Verbal Boundary Description (Describe the boundaries of the property.)

The property is a rectangle with the smaller sides to the north and south. Measuring from the northwest corner of the lot 80 feet (makai side) + 135 feet (Hilo side) + 80 feet (mauka side) + 135 (Waipi'o side) feet to point of origin.

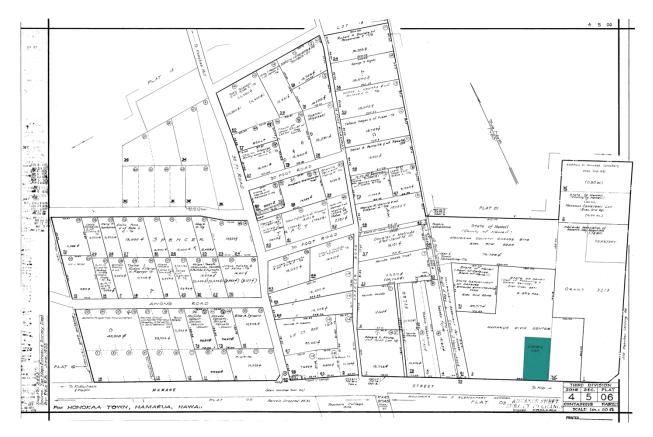

Boundary Justification (Explain why the boundaries were selected.)

This historical property consists of land set aside for public purposes by Executive Order 409, April 14, 1930. In 1936, a government blueprint officially designated the library property within the Civic Center property. The historic property boundaries have been settled since that time. Tax Map Key number (3) 4-5--06: 003 is the official designation for this complete parcel used since its establishment in 1935

Photographs

Submit clear and descriptive photographs. The size of each image must be 1600x1200 pixels (minimum), 3000x2000 preferred, at 300 ppi (pixels per inch) or larger. Key all photographs to the sketch map. Each photograph must be numbered and that number must correspond to the photograph number on the photo log. For simplicity, the name of the photographer, photo date, etc. may be listed once on the photograph log and doesn't need to be labeled on every photograph.

ADDENDUM A-LIBRARY TIMELINE

1848-Mahele Land Commission Award to William Pitt Leleiohoku: LCA 9971*H.

1896-Architect Harry Ka'ōnohi Stewart born.

- Pre-1927–The first library in Honoka'a was located in the Sakada Building and had "a large attractive room in the downtown location." The "custodian of the Honoka'a Library" position existed in 1925 but not in 1920 according to the census. (History of Honoka'a Library–1972)
- Pre-1927–Honoka'a townspeople state that the earliest library was located in the Sakada Building
- Pre-1927–the Congregational Church (on the site now the United Methodist Church) lent books (perhaps religious books) to young people.
- 1927–New Union Church (now United Methodist Church) dedicated "In addition to the community hall maintained by the church, a boarding home for boys and girls is operated as well as is a branch of the Hilo Library.
- 1935–Architect Harry Ka'ōnohi Stewart was appointed to design the new library in the Civic Center property.
- May 21, 1937–Molokai Public Library (twin of Honoka'a Library) also designed by Harry Ka'ōnohi Stewart) opened.
- June 5, 1937–The current library officially opened. The Honoka'a Women's Club, spearheaded by Mrs. Jean Fraser teacher and principal at Honoka'a School, was instrumental in getting the Territorial government to fund part of the construction and they used the Children's Room for their meetings and sponsored programs. Building of the library cost less than $14,000.
- 1937-Mrs. Doris Higashi was employed to clean the new library
- 1937–Mrs. MacFarlane was the first librarian in the new building

1939-Architect Harry Ka'ōnohi Stewart died.

1942–Mrs. MacFarlane and Margaret Mochida were on the staff at the library

1942–There was an apparent attempt by the United Service Organizations (U.S.O.) to take over the large room of the library for their use (they had been given the small children's room but wished to expand).

1944–1948 (at least) Mrs. Clarence Carter was librarian. Ellen Leong, Mrs. Nakamura and Mrs. Catherine Moir served as assistants during that time period.

1953-1989–Mieko Shigematsu ran the library

1959–When Hawai'i became a state (1959) all the Territorial libraries came under the State system. Hawai'i is the only state with a one library system so you can take out books from any one of the 51 libraries.

1965-1995–Vera Paiva was library assistant.

1968-1995–Mrs. Gwynne Logan was the area librarian. The area that was covered was Laupahoehoe, Honoka'a, Waimea (Thelma Parker Library), and the Bond Library in Kohala. 1971–The Bookmobile made field trips through the Hāmākua District (this replaced the station wagon previously used).

1986–Honoka'a Library becomes computerized.

1995-2014–Tahirih Foster was Branch Manager of Honoka'a Library.

Hawai'I, Hawai'i County and State

Hawai'I, Hawai'i County and State

- 1996–Friends of the Libraries, Hāmākua began to help the Honoka'a and Laupahoehoe Libraries enrich their resources and expand their services.
- 1997–Honoka'a Library celebrated its 60th year of operations.

2006–Statistics show they had 1,889 active borrowers, monthly circulation of 2,533m and holdings of 21,248 items.

2017– Honoka'a Library celebrated its 80th year of operations.
