Narrative Description

(Describe the historic and current physical appearance and condition of the property. Describe contributing and noncontributing resources if applicable. Begin with a summary paragraph that briefly describes the general characteristics of the property, such as its location, type, style, method of construction, setting, size, and significant features. Indicate whether the property has historic integrity.)

Summary Paragraph

The Hotel Honokaa Club, circa 1927, is a two story-wood frame commercial building located at 45-3480 Māmane Street in the historic plantation town of Honoka‘a on the northeast side of the island of Hawai‘i. The building is situated on the center portion of an approximately 22,904 square-foot lot that fronts Māmane Street, the town’s main commercial corridor, and slopes downward toward Koa Street (formerly Awong Road) at the rear. The building is an example of the type of vernacular architectural design and method of construction that is known locally as “plantation style.” Defining features include a totan (corrugated metal) roof, single wall construction with vertical wood planks, and numerous double-hung windows. The building has three floor levels that include the main floor, a rear second story addition, and a basement area. Historically, the hotel/club functioned as a local gathering place that provided guest accommodations for travelers, temporary sales space for the display of commercial samples and wares by traveling salesmen, and a dining room and bar facility that was the site of numerous local social occasions and get-togethers from the 1920s through the 1960s and beyond. While changes to the building occurred in the 1940s, 1960s, and 1990s, it retains much of its historic integrity in terms of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association. Overall, the property is in good/fair condition and it is a good example of a modest commercial hotel/restaurant built in a rural plantation town in Hawai‘i in the early part of the nineteenth century.

Period of Significance (Justification)

The year 1921 is the date of acquisition of the property; 1927 represents an approximate date of construction based on tax assessor's field notes, although some tax records indicate a construction date of 1931. Tax assessor field notes also indicate that changes to the building occurred in 1948 and again in the 1960s. The year 1964 reflects the end of the 50-year period of significance set forth in the Secretary of Interior's guidelines.

Statement of Significance Summary Paragraph (Provide a summary paragraph that includes level of significance, applicable criteria, justification for the period of significance, and any applicable criteria considerations.)

The Hotel Honokaa Club is significant for the Hawai'i and National Registers on the State Level under Criteria A (Events/History) and C (Architecture).

The Hotel Honokaa Club is eligible for the National Register of Historic Places on the State level under Criteria A (Events/History). The building's use as both an entertainment/social center and hotel reflect its origins in this small community. It began as a social gathering place for large numbers of unmarried males seeking entertainment after a long day's work. It branched into hotel accommodations as a resting place and headquarters for sales personnel/drummers who went from place to place across the island peddling their wares. The facilities were Spartan, reflecting the limited means of both the proprietors and clientele. The fact that nearby Waimea had no liquor establishments, and the alcohol needs of World War II soldiers, encouraged the bar operations. Wedding receptions and high school gatherings at the Club have knit the Honoka'a community together for generations.

The Hotel Honokaa Club is eligible for the National Register of Historic Places on the State level under Criteria C (Architecture). The complex has a low-rise lodge character, complete with chimney. The architecture is vernacular plantation era design, featuring a foundation of mostly post and piers, with single wood vertical walls utilizing a horizontal girt board for stability, double hung windows, and a totan (corrugated iron) roof. The building features a central open raised lanai (veranda) facing the street that is reached by concrete steps. Makai of the lanai is an atrium that separates the entertainment activities on the Waipi'o side from the hotel space on the Hilo side. The mauka-Waipi'o corner area was once a bar and features the requisite long countertop to serve customers. The kitchen is makai of the bar with a large central dining room extending to picture windows in the back. On the far makai-Waipi'o side is a second bar complex. On the hotel side of the building, on the Hilo side of the atrium, are three levels of overnight accommodations. The main floor contains the original rooms. Below are communal facilities and on the top floor are the premium suites featuring expansive views of the Pacific Ocean below.

Additional Documentation

Submit the following items with the completed form:

- Maps: A USGS map or equivalent (7.5 or 15 minute series) indicating the property's location.
- Sketch map for historic districts and properties having large acreage or numerous resources. Key all photographs to this map.
- Additional items: (Check with the SHPO, TPO, or FPO for any additional items.)

Photographs

Submit clear and descriptive photographs. The size of each image must be 1600x1200 pixels (minimum), 3000x2000 preferred, at 300 ppi (pixels per inch) or larger. Key all photographs to the sketch map. Each photograph must be numbered and that number must correspond to the photograph number on the photo log. For simplicity, the name of the photographer, photo date, etc. may be listed once on the photograph log and doesn't need to be labeled on every photograph.

Narrative Description

The Hotel Honokaa Club building has an irregular floor plan. The main floor or street level has a covered open-air lanai (veranda) at the entrance. Interior spaces include an elongated corridor or hallway with access to a row of hotel guest rooms. The remaining areas on this floor include space for a bar/continental breakfast room, kitchen, storage room, dining/party/meeting room, dining/party room and a back bar/dining/party room. At the rear of the building is an approximately 2,099 square-foot second story addition (1948) that contains six hotel guest rooms with picturesque views overlooking the Hāmākua coastline. The partially finished basement level contains the ground level atrium; laundry, utility and storage areas; and several hotel and hostel guest rooms with shared bathroom facilities.

The corrugated metal roof that covers the building's main floor has a low pitch side-facing gable-on-hip roofline with wood vented cross gables and broad overhanging open eaves. A corrugated metal roof also covers the rear second story addition and has a side-facing gable roofline. The underside of the totan roofing material is exposed. Most walls of the building are of single wall construction. Portions of the building sit on a wood post and concrete pier, or concrete block, foundation.

Exterior:

Principal Façade

The principal façade fronts Māmane Street and has two entrances. On the Waipi'o side there is a set of concrete steps and an unused entrance landing with wood posts, a half-height wood hand rail, and a single wood framed entry door that can provide access to the bar, restaurant, and lounge areas. The main entrance located near the center of this façade is comprised of a relatively wide covered open-air lanai. Concrete steps rise to front edge of the lanai floor. Perpendicular low-lying capped concrete walls flank these entrance steps. Wood porch railings at the lanai level are situated on the each side of the steps. The lanai leads to doorways on the Waipi'o-side that open onto the bar/continental breakfast room and the dining/party/meeting room. The lanai also leads to a Hilo-side hallway and a relatively long corridor that provides access to a series of hotel guest rooms. There is a brick chimney (clad in metal on the exterior of the building) built into the wall between the two entrances.

The Waipi'o-side (left) of this street frontage façade has a double ribbon or band of five window openings screened by vertical wood louvers and separated by mullions. On the left most side of the unused Waipi'o-side entrance door is a fixed wood frame window (1/1 light). Between the Waipi'o entrance door and the central lanai is the aforementioned chimney and one set of horizontal slider windows (2/3 lights) with an exterior mounted wood frame screen (4/3 lights). To the right of the main lanai entrance, perpendicular to the street, there is a single double-hung sash window with a 2/2 light pattern. The Hilo-side (right-hand side) of this façade, parallel to the street, has paired horizontal slider windows (1/3 lights). All windows on this façade have wood frames and a simple, narrow sill along the lower edge.

Facade on the Hilo Side:

Along the Hilo side of the building is a concrete walkway and relatively narrow landscaped garden area that follows the sloping topography of the property. Near the center portion of this facade is a set of wood and concrete steps that lead to the basement area. Windows on this facade have exterior mounted wood frame screens and include double-hung sash windows and glass jalousies.

Makai (Oceanside) Façade:

The makai façade has two ground level entrances that lead to lower level guest rooms, and utility and storage areas in the basement. Windows on the basement level have exterior mounted wood frame screens and include horizontal slider windows, glass jalousies, and double-hung sash windows with 2/2 lights. Windows on the main level of this facade include a combination of double-hung sash windows, large fixed pane picture windows, and horizontal slider windows. Windows on the second story addition are double-hung sash windows (2/2) situated on each side of a large fixed pane picture window. On the Waipi'o side of this façade is an enclosed wood staircase that has a large slider window on the second story level.

Façade on the Waipi'o Side:

On the Waipi'o side of the building, a metal handrail abuts a concrete walkway and series of concrete steps that follow the slope of the property's topography. Near the rear of the building is an enclosed wood staircase that provides access to the other floor levels. A wood door near the front of the building provides access to the kitchen and bar/continental breakfast areas on the main floor. Windows along this facade include a fixed picture window with a single double-hung sash window on the second story level; three double-hung sash windows over the back bar/dining/ party room; a double ribbon of vertically mounted glass jalousies along the kitchen area, and a wood louvered window opening located near the front of the building. A half-height swinging wood gate separates the side yard area from the front of the property.

Interior Features

First Floor – Bar/Continental Breakfast, Kitchen, Storage, Back Bar/Dining/Party, Dining/Party, Dining/Party/Meeting, Atrium, Hotel Office and Hotel Rooms

Located on the mauka-Waipi'o side of the building is space currently used as a bar/continental breakfast room featuring a large meeting table and brick fireplace. Interestingly, at the far side of this same room is an area that was once a bar, with a sculpted koa wood bar top, tabletops, decorative posts, and a carved seating booth which give the room an ambiance reminiscent of "tiki" bars of the 1960s. Windows along the frontage side and Waipi'o side of this room have wood frames and vertical wood louvers. There is also a small restroom in this area with tongue-and-groove wood walls.

Makai of the bar/continental breakfast room is an approximately 52' x 18' kitchen area that includes space for food preparation, food service, and a pantry. The centralized location of the kitchen allows support of food and drink activities in the bar/continental breakfast room, and the back bar/dining/party room, the dining/party/meeting room, and the dining/party room. The location and design of the kitchen facilitates ventilation by a ribbon of louvered windows along the Waipi'o side of the building. The kitchen was remodeled in the 1990s and features standard equipment including stoves, sinks, brown floor tile and countertops of that era. The older hallways leading from the kitchen to the public dining room areas retain the wood walls and ceilings with bead molding.

The location of the Kitchen provides immediate access to the back bar, the makai dining room, and the main dining/party/meeting room. The back bar, approximately 24 x 44 foot in size, features a combination of picture windows and double-hung sash windows with 2/2 lights, vertical board wood walls, a texturized ceiling, and carpet covered floors. The bar is finished with bamboo paneling.

An enclosed end-wall wood staircase with landings is located on the makai-Waipi'o side of the building. It provides access to the second floor guest rooms, the kitchen and back bar/dining party room on the main floor, and the exterior concrete walkway on the basement or ground level of the building. Another set of wooden stairs is located in the kitchen providing access to the laundry and utility service areas in the basement.

The dining/party/meeting room is located makai of the bar/continental breakfast room with access via a set of full-height, wood-frame sliding glass doors that have a 1/4 light pattern. The dining/party/meeting room features high ceilings, painted vertical board wood walls, vinyl flooring, and sliding doors that can be used to separate it from the dining/party and back bar/dining/party rooms. The dining/party room and back bar/dining/party rooms can, in turn, be segregated from each other by a series of sliding shoji (room divider consisting of wood and translucent washi [Japanese rice paper]) doors.

The main dining/party/meeting room has a white ceiling with a rectangular lattice pattern demarcated by wood trim that is influenced by Asian designs and complements the style and design of the shoji screen doors. Large horizontal slider windows with a 3/1 light pattern are located on the Hilo-side of the dining room overlooking the inner atrium area. From the dining/party/meeting room there is access to a men's restroom located on the makai side of the atrium. A women's restroom that can also be accessed from the dining room is located on the mauka side of the atrium.

Hotel Area

The hotel guest rooms form a front-facing L-shaped floor plan along the rear and Hilo-side portions of the building. The hotel office is situated parallel to Māmane Street, immediately to the Hilo-side, (the right) of the main entrance lanai. A hallway with a 90-degree angle opens onto a long corridor with direct access to the first floor guestrooms. Along the corridor there is also a wood staircase that leads to the hallway and guestrooms on the second floor level, and a wood and concrete staircase that provides access to the ground level atrium and basement level of the building. The corridor features wood walls, floors, trim, molding, and baseboards.

Atrium

Located between the guestroom corridor and the dining room area is an open-air basement-to-second floor atrium. A staircase on the makai side provides access to the landscaped atrium surface below and also storage, utility, and guestroom areas in the basement level of the building. Windows located on the dining room side of the atrium are large horizontal slider windows with a 3/1 light pattern. A set of paired wood framed awning type windows also open from the women's restroom.

First Floor—Guestrooms (Hilo Side)

Most of the guestrooms on the first floor have wood doors with a single fixed window pane set above three inset wood panels, 10' high ceilings, and screened transom windows that provide cross ventilation from the hallway corridor. The guest rooms have wood walls and ceilings, interior girts, and double hung windows with wood frames. Each guestroom has a washbasin in the corner and its own private shower/toilet.

Second floor—Guestrooms (Makai Side)

Wood staircases situated at each end of an enclosed hallway provide access to the hotel guest rooms located on the second floor addition. The hallway has wood walls, baseboards, molding, and trim around guestroom doors and transom windows. Double-hung windows with two vertical end rectangular lights in each pane are located on both the mauka side and the Waipi'o end of the hallway. There are also two storage closets located on the mauka side of the hall. The closets have wood doors with a single recessed wood panel.

Six hotel guest rooms are located on the makai side of the hallway. Immediately inside each guest room is a bathroom to one side and a closet on the other. The bathrooms have large shower stalls with octagon tile floors and hand painted metal walls. In each room, large picture windows, flanked by double-hung sash windows, frame the Hāmākua coastline.

Basement Level

The basement area reflects the sloped topography of the site. The mauka-most portion is simply a crawl space, demarcated on the Waipi'o and Hilo side by a vertical wood skirt. A large interior open space provides access to the laundry; kitchen stairs; two storage rooms; the youth hostel rooms; and shared shower and toilet facilities. The finished areas of the basement area have either painted concrete block or wood walls. The finished floor areas are concrete or wood.

Outbuildings

There is an approximately 1,284 square-foot wood frame dwelling, circa 1941, located at the rear of the hotel/club building. Primary access to the house is from Koa Street although there is also a covered walkway that leads to the rear of the hotel-club building. The house has experienced some loss of historic integrity due to various alterations over the years and is considered a non-contributing building for the purposes of this nomination.

There is also an open-air, parking shed with dirt floor, circa 1942, that fronts Koa Street. A corrugated metal roof supported by wood posts and concrete piers partially covers the area above the parking stalls. A concrete pathway with steps goes between the parking structure and the rear of the hotel. This shed has not been maintained and is in fair to poor condition. It appears to have lost some of its historic integrity and is considered a non-contributing building for the purposes of this nomination.

Alterations and Major Changes to the Hotel Honokaa Club Building:

Changes to the exterior of the building include the addition of a low-lying cross gable roofline located at each end of the building. The date of this change is uncertain but it does not appear to significantly impact the overall visual impression of the building as a plantation style building. The second story addition with a side-facing gable roofline was added to the rear of the building in 1948 to accommodate the addition of six hotel guest rooms with views overlooking the Hāmākua coastline. A rooftop solar photovoltaic system was added in 2006.

Interior changes made centered on attempts to retain restaurant and bar business over time.

The bar/continental breakfast room on the front Waipi'o side of the building was once the manager's quarters and later was remodeled into bar space. The wood louvered windows along this portion of the building appear to be an alteration and the date of that change is uncertain. Although the use of this portion of the building has changed over time, the wood louvers do not appear to significantly impact the design, scale, or overall visual impression of the principal facade.

In the early 1960s, the kitchen and bar/continental breakfast and back bar/dining/party room facilities were remodeled and large shoji screen wall partitions were added to accommodate smaller events.

The mauka façade, facing Māmane Street, once featured more extensive landscaping. (The parking area was expanded at an unknown date.) Portions of the original landscaping still exist on both sides along the property lines and adjacent to the Hotel structure.

Narrative Statement of Significance

The Honoka'a Hotel Club is eligible for the National Register of Historic Places on the State Level under Criteria A (Events/History) and C (Architecture).

Criteria A

Background

In 1878, three commercial sugar plantations existed in Hāmākua in the vicinity of a village that later became Honoka'a. These plantations included Honokaa Sugar Company [HSCo], Paauihau Sugar Company and Pacific Sugar Mill. By 1913 these three plantations had over 12,000 acres in sugar cane. A labor shortage beginning in the mid-19th century prompted the importation of foreign workers. The Chinese were the first to arrive, with large numbers of Japanese following beginning in 1888, then followed by Portuguese, Korean, Puerto Rican and Filipinos over the next 40 years. The workers, many married with families, were housed in 13 camps along the Hāmākua coast near Honoka'a. As these workers completed their contracts with the plantations, many moved to Honoka'a and began businesses, providing the impetus for the development of the town. As Honoka'a grew and evolved, a variety of businesses, offering wide-ranging choices of goods and services, eventually made Honoka'a the largest town on the Hāmākua coast and the second largest on the island.

In 1910 the population of Honoka'a stood at 9,037, a population sufficient to support a hotel along with lodging for travelers, salesmen and laborers in transit to the plantations to support the growing village. In 1912, A. B. Lindsay, owner of a store and the Postmaster, and Joseph Prichard, the manager of the Hamakua and South Kohala Telephone Co., provided financing and materials to build a hotel. The Hotel Honokaa Club first appears in the business directory of 1912 and is called Hotel Honokaa (Husted 1910, v. p). The original site of the hotel complex lay along the Government Road (Māmane Street) on the Hilo-side of the present Bank of Hawaii. The 1904 Dove map shows the A.B. Lindsay store situated directly across the street from the original hotel. Notably, in 1889, Sejikiro Goto, brother of the murdered Katsu Goto, clerked in Lindsay's store after returning to Hawai'i to attend his brother's funeral (Nakano 1996).

The Hotel Honokaa Club is an example of small, often ethnic, hotels that proliferated around the islands. For example, Greek immigrant George Lycurgus was instrumental in developing both San Souci (at Waikiki Beach) and the Volcano House (in 2014's Volcanoes National Park). Both of those hotels catered mostly to affluent European and American tourists. More numerous were hotels run by Japanese immigrants and their descendants. The Manago Hotel in Captain Cook, Kona, is probably the best known. Built by Kinzo Manago in the early 1900s with a loan of $100, it is Kona's oldest operating hotel (West Hawaii Today, May 1, 2014). The Shirakawa Hotel in Waiōhinu (Ka'ū District), built in the 1920s, still rents out thirteen rooms (Hawaii Tribune Herald, December 13, 1999). While no records show when the Nanbu Hotel building in Kohala was first erected, documents show it existed as early as 1898. In 1917, Ayataro Nanbu bought the hotel and expanded it with his wife Toei (Star Bulletin, May 20, 2001). In the 1930s, after Mrs. Nanbu died of cancer in Japan, Mr. Nanbu focused on the hotel and made it flourish. "During the war years, Ayataro Nanbu would always give the first round on the house for all soldiers and officers." The Nanbu hotel closed in 1960.

Property History

The present Hotel Honokaa Club property was part of a 225-acre Land Commission Award (Royal Patent 2465 to Olepau Kaiaokioki and Papaiki).

In 1911 the land was mortgaged by owners Samuel Mahuka and Alice K. Spencer (Bureau of Conveyances, Liber 342, p.p. 282-285). (Samuel Mahuka Spencer was from a Waimea family; over his lifetime he was employed by the Waterhouse Trust Company, in the Territorial Land Office as a clerk, as a bookkeeper for Parker Ranch, engaged in land development, was admitted to the bar and eventually became Chairman of the County Board of Supervisors for the County of Hawaii [Lee, 1939]). The Spencers likely hoped to benefit from the growth of the Hilo Railway, which by 1913 had built its line from Hilo as far as Pa'auilo—just seven miles from Honoka'a. As Honoka'a was the stated terminus for the Hilo Railway, commercial and residential construction in Honoka'a was directed toward Hilo to the east. Unfortunately, the rough terrain of the Hāmākua Coast made the cost of railroad construction so high that the Hilo Railway underwent bankruptcy proceedings in 1914 and the renamed Hawaii Consolidated Railway never was extended to Honoka'a. (The Hawaii Consolidated Railway closed down in 1946 after the tsunami (seismic sea wave, Japanese) of that year destroyed many key bridges [interview, Ross Stephenson, September 13, 2014].)

By best estimate, the Hotel Honokaa Club was at the present location by about 1927. Interestingly, an examination of the original Hotel complex drawn in the 1914 Sanborn Fire Insurance Company map for Honoka'a looks very similar to the present layout of the ca. 1927 portion of 2014's building. In both, the bar/restaurant is on the Waipi'o side of the building, there are central front steps, and the hotel room wing is located on the Hilo side. It is very possible that portions of the hotel, especially the main guest room floor, were relocated to the new site. (Moving wooden buildings, constructed on post and piers, was common.) What is certain is that at least part of the original hotel complex remained at the old site until 1927, when the old hotel temporarily housed the Bank of Hawaii branch until a new bank building was opened that year (Hilo Tribune-Herald, August 19, 1927).

The Hotel Honokaa Club occupies contiguous original lots 5, 6, 17 and 18 of the Spencer Tract subdivision. These occupy part of the block between Māmane Street (originally Government Road) and Koa Street (originally Awong Road).

In 1920, First Bank of Hilo, which held the Spencer's mortgage, sold Lots 5 and 7 to Gladys Dias for $850 (Bureau of Conveyances, Liber 558, p. 127). Lot 5 measures 4998 sq. ft. and Lot 17 measures 6454 sq. ft. for a total of 11,452 sq. ft. That same year, Dias sold the two lots to Nam Soon Myung for $2500 (Bureau of Conveyances, Liber 558, p. 1128). Again in the same year, Myung sold the lots to Kumakichi Morita, for $2000, taking a $500 loss (Bureau of Conveyance, Liber 582, pp. 75-76). In 1921, Alice Spencer sold Lots 6 and 18 to the Hilo Trading Company. Though incorporated in Hawai'i, the principal, C. G. Vicars, resided in Alameda, California (Bureau of Conveyances Liber 620, p. 168). In 1925, the Hilo Trading Company sold lots 6 and 18 to Kumakichi Morita for $900 (Bureau of Conveyances Liber 785, pp. 297 – 298). Lot 6 measures 4998 sq. ft. and Lot 18 measures 6454 sq. ft. for a total of 11452 sq. ft. The total square footage for the 4-lot parcel is now 22,904 sq. ft.

In 1933 these four lots were consolidated and given a single designation (3) 4-5- 006:013, using a new territory-wide Tax Map Key (TMK) system. (This was part of a government reorganization, initiated in 1917, precipitated by the development of country governments. County governments were to be dependent upon property tax revenues, which required an inventory system and method to differentiate parcels for tax rate determination and collection. In 1932, the territorial government and counties went one step further, creating a numeration system that provided locus information from the county level down to the individual parcel level. Data collected by the government using this system includes location, boundaries, square footage, improvements and ownership.)

In 1939, Kane made a warranty deed for the property to son Victor (Yoshikazu) for a consideration of $1 but she was still listed as a beneficiary of Kumakichi's estate (Bureau of Conveyances, Liber 1519, p. 168). A year later, on September 27, 1940 Victor and his wife Tomiko sold the property to F. R. H. Fraser, an officer of the Honoka'a branch of the Bank of Hawaii, and his wife for $1 (Bureau of Conveyances Liber 1590, p. 495). Fraser immediately sold them back the parcel on the same day for the consideration of "1$ and love" as tenants in entirety (Bureau of Conveyances, Liber 1590, p. 496). This was likely also done to clear the title for Kane who is still a non-citizen in 1940. In 1953, Victor Y. died after a stroke at the age of 44 (Honolulu Advertiser, A7:1, 1953); his wife Tomiko then deeded the property for the consideration of "$1 and love" to sons Henry, Alexander and Robert as part of the distribution of Victor's estate (Bureau of Conveyances, Liber 4613, p. 470). In 1964, Henry, Alexander and Robert formed the Hotel Honokaa Club, Inc. and took out their first mortgage for $17,000 (Bureau of Conveyances, Liber 4801, p. 214). Over the next 22 years, between 1964 and 1989, 7 mortgages, with ever increasing amounts, were taken out on the property (Bureau of Conveyances, various documents). In 1989, Hotel Honokaa Club became the property of Waimea Group Limited Partnership by warranty deed and the consideration of $10. Principals of the Group were Joris Watland, Bradley Carvalho and Alvin Wakayama (Bureau of Conveyances, Liber 23254, pp. 537 – 551), though the actual sale did not take place until 1994 for $485,000. The partnership was subsequently dissolved (Bureau of Conveyances, Document # 94-192575). In 1998, a warranty deed to back up the bill of sale was issued to Joris Watland, who is the current owner.

Historical Events

1910s, 1920s Through Early 1930s

Originally the hotel did not have a name. The 1914 Sanborn Fire Insurance map labels it as Honokaa Club (Hotel). By 1915 it was listed in the local business directory as the "Honokaa Hotel Club." An advertisement in the telephone directory for the hotel read: "A First Class Hotel and Boarding House, Rates $3.00 per Day and Up" (Polk-Husted 1915). By 1920 the rates had increased to $4.00 per day (Ibid). The addition of the term "Club" in the name reflects the use of the establishment from its inception as a nexus for entertainment and drinking, while the hotel portion served as a residence and lodging for immigrants, unmarried sugar cane workers, paniolo (cowboys), and travelling salesmen (Star Bulletin; March 25, 1948).

"At that time the majority of the key plantation men were unmarried, and it was their custom to convene on Saturday nights for merry and lengthy sessions at the hotel. They came on horseback and departed the same way although not always with the same horse.

"As years went by the hotel became the 'club' with all its members and eventually in a duly called 'committee' hearing the name was voted to become the Honokaa Club Hotel." (Star Bulletin; March 25, 1948).

The salesmen who stayed at the hotel, were known as "drummers" commercial travelers, runners, or "gripmen" ("grip" here referring to the trunk or suitcase carried by salesmen). These sales personnel travelled through Hāmākua and Kohala approximately every two weeks in a circuit from Honolulu to Kawaihae to Laupāhoehoe to Hilo "drumming up" business (Star Bulletin, March 25, 1948). One was a mainland representative, W.H. Smith of the Manufacturer's Shoe Company of Honolulu (Boot and Shoe Recorder v. 57, August 3rd 1910). These salesmen would set up their wares and samples for the various merchants within the town, and use the hotel as a headquarters.

Preparations for War

In 1940 it is significant to note that, even under the darkening threat of war, a strong sense of community existed in Honoka'a. First generation Japanese, who had worked a lifetime to acquire land, were painfully aware that elsewhere in the United States (California) they were not allowed to do so. They were also aware that, during the First World War, German citizens had had their land confiscated by the American government. Resident Japanese aliens were very afraid that they and their property would suffer the same fate. As a result, titles to goods and property were frequently transferred to citizen offspring or trusted friends from other ethnic groups. Symbolic property transfers were also undertaken, to demonstrate support for close friends by close friends. The owners of the Hotel Honokaa Club, Victor and Tomiko Morita, apparently felt it necessary to engage in similar activities. They sold the property to F. R. H. Fraser for the "consideration of $1.00" (Bureau of Conveyances Liber 1590, p. 475) and reacquired it on the same day for "consideration of $1.00" (Bureau of Conveyances Liber 1590, p. 476). The return of title to Victor Morita would be a public declaration of willingness by Fraser to again temporarily resume title in an emergency (Ross Stephenson, personal communication, 2014).

World War II

From 1943-1945, over 50,000 U.S. Marines lived and trained in and around Waimea and the Kohala Coast. Camp Tarawa was originally built by the 2nd Marine Division, but upon the 2nd's deployment to Saipan, the 5th Marine Division moved in to train for the Battle of Iwo Jima. Alfred Carter (manager of Parker Ranch) had historically limited the availability of liquor in Waimea, so when the Marines came in 1943-45 they found that town dry. The soldiers simply followed the Waimea ranch cowboys down the hill to "wet" Honoka'a. Hotel Honokaa Club was one of many "watering holes" in Honoka'a that benefited from the servicemen's patronage. Camp Tarawa closed in November 1945.

Post War

After the war, the hotel expanded its activities focusing on locals, hosting weddings, high school group gatherings and luau events; Victor Morita planned additions and remodeling. In 1948, Victor constructed a second story containing six bedroom suites. Five new bedrooms were added downstairs and new bathrooms were added to the original Hilo side bedrooms. The dining room was expanded and decorated, and the bar was remodeled with the addition of a cocktail lounge. An updated kitchen with electricity was also added and the entire edifice painted (Star Bulletin, March 25 1948).

The hotel would put up construction workers from time to time. Apparently, the hotel did not always have enough rooms so Henry Morita put up workers in the "down house," the family residence downhill from the hotel. One night, an obake (Japanese ghost) event happened: a sleeping construction worker was startled awake by someone grabbing his toes. The worker woke up Henry and told of his experience. Henry said his late grandmother, Kane, used to wake up the boys by grabbing their toes. The worker immediately asked for another room (Naomi Morita [wife of Alex Morita], interview 2013-14).

At some point in the Morita ownership, the hotel restaurant became famous for its well-regarded Japanese teishoku dinners (a set meal on a tray), sizzling steak dinners, and especially its lobster dinners. One of the Rockefellers would drive all the way from Kona for his favorite lobster dinner. (Jory Watland, personal communication, 2013). In 1960, the hotel added another cocktail lounge dubbed the "Waipio Room" (unidentified newspaper article June 6, 1960).

Macadamia Nut Company's golf tourney played at the Hamakua Country Club as part of the annual Macadamia Nut Harvest Festival. Local personages included now Channel 2 KHON newscaster "Joltin' Joe" Moore, golf course architect Robert Trent Jones, Jr, and singer Danny Kaleikini (Honolulu Advertiser, August 29, 1978). Further shenanigans related to the martini room included Jim Nabors' dedication of the Jim Nabors Righthanded (sic) Pay Toilet.

During the last years of the Morita proprietorship, the owners were forced to take out mortgages for increasing amounts to cover expenses. They eventually lost control of the Hotel Honokaa Club.

By 1989, Waimea Group Limited Partnership acquired the property. Included in the partnership was Jory Watland, who ultimately became sole owner. During Watland's tenure, the restaurant kitchen was completely renovated, but a continuing decline in patronage eventually led to the end of meal services on the premises. Only holiday live music presentations continued to draw crowds to the former dining areas.

With the decline in sugar employment, hotel business also plateaued. In 1997, a bed in the youth hostel in the basement cost $15 per night and a "luxury suite" upstairs $55.

Watland has continued to have faith in his Hotel Honokaa Club. He has invested extensively in the physical plant, including a complete new totan roof, sewer system, and photovoltaic system. As a member of the second generation of his family that has endorsed historic preservation, he has been an advocate of placing Honoka'a on the State and National Historic Registers.

People

The Morita Clan

The first manager of the Honokaa Hotel Club complex was Kumakichi Morita. He was born about 1873 in Kumamoto Prefecture in Japan. He immigrated to the United States in September of 1905 and his wife, Kane, followed in November of the same year (Records of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, 1787-2004). He learned the restaurant business in San Francisco. Trained as a chef in American cuisine, he then came to Hawai'i. In Honolulu, Kumakichi spent a short period in the employ of Prince Jonah Kūhīo Kalaniana'ole. Unfortunately, the Prince did not appreciate an exclusive American cuisine and Morita soon looked elsewhere for employment.

A newspaper advertisement led him to Honoka'a and the residence of George Jamieson, the manager of Honokaa Sugar Plantation where he was to work as a cook in the Jamieson household.

Kumakichi and Kane arrived in Honoka'a, as many early emigrants did, by way of a basket transporting people and goods from shipboard by a series of wire ropes, derricks, pulleys, and counter weights connecting upper Hāmākua slopes with vessels at sea. As early as 1883, local historian Thomas Thrum noted the extensive use of by plantations of Andrew Hallidie's wire tramways at selected places along the coast.

The 1910 Census indeed noted the Kumakichi was employed as a cook in a private household; his wife Kane was unemployed (Hawaii, Compiled Census Index, 1900-1910 Provo, UT, USA). They were both literate in Japanese, and they may have had some English language proficiency. Kumakichi registered for the draft at age 45 in 1918, a common effort to qualify for citizenship (Hilo draft board, October 26, 1918).

By 1920, Kumakichi and his wife were running the hotel. He was listed as the proprietor and she as a cook. Eighteen-year-old son Yoshikazu (Victor), who had been born in Yokohama, was listed as having emigrated from Japan in 1917 where he had been a clerk. A 30-year-old male, unmarried boarder Momoro Takai, was also living with the Moritas, and working as a clerk in a retail store (Bureau of the Census, 1920).

In the 1930 census, Kumakichi continued to be the proprietor of the hotel, but Kane and 28-year-old Yoshikazu were not working. Yoshikazu had married 23-year-old Tomiko and had two sons, 2-year-old Shozo H. and 11-month-old Takao. The household also included a 16-year-old Japanese girl named Shizuko Uyehara and Jaoa Daug, a 19-year-old Filipino, both working as servants for a "private family." (It is unknown if the "private family" was the Moritas (Bureau of the Census 1930). During the 1930s Yoshikazu visited Japan for a week at a time: once in 1932 and twice in 1936. He was classified on the manifests as a clerk, hotel proprietor and hotel owner (Passenger Lists of Vessels Arriving at Honolulu).

In the 1930s, not shown in the census, tragedy struck the family. It was a sad day when driving the family car Victor lost control and ran into one of the many gulches in Hāmākua. One-to-two-year-old son Jean was killed and oldest son Henry was severely injured, spent many months healing at the Honolulu Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, and forever walked with a limp. Alex was too young to go in the car and was spared.

The 1940s census recorded major changes in the Morita household. Not recorded were Kumakichi, Yoshikazu, Tomiko, Shozo, Takao and the two servant boarders. The names listed are Kane, who was now the head of the household, and three grandsons, 12-year old Henry, 9-year-old Alexander, and 6-year-old Robert. The three grandsons were named after Victor's friends: Henry Shozo, Alexander Hideyo, and Robert _____. (Naomi Morita, interview 2014). Later land documents confirm them as Yoshikazu and Tomiko's sons. According to Victor Y[oshikazu] Morita's obituary (Honolulu Advertiser, "Victor Morita Dies on Hawaii After Stroke." December 4, 1953, A7:1). Interestingly enough, they also had a younger daughter, Judy, though her name was not known at the time of the 1953 notice.

The three boys, Henry, Alexander and Robert, reorganized the title to the property in 1964. Over the next twenty-two years, a total of seven mortgages were taken out on the property to raise cash as declining patronage translated into operating losses. The Moritas lost control of the property in 1989 (Bureau of Conveyances, Liber 4801, p. 214 and various documents).

Alex Morita continued to contribute to Honoka'a becoming the administrator overseeing building the new Honokaa Hospital. He would live weekdays in a small cottage on the hospital grounds, returning to his home in Hilo on the weekends. (Naomi Morita, interview 2014).

Jory Watland and Annelle Lee

Jory Watland was born in Jackson, Minnesota on October 16, 1940. After attending the University of Hawai'i, he returned to the islands as a Lutheran minister in 1968. Annelle Lee, his partner, was born December 18, 1942 in Hilo and was raised in Wailuku, Maui. Both have been involved with the Hotel Honokaa Club since 1994 (Annelle Lee, interview, September 10, 2014).

The Hotel Honokaa Club remains an important asset to our social history. Very few of such facilities remain. It deserves official recognition under Criterion A.

Criterion C

“Plantation Vernacular” is used to define a regional architectural style for buildings erected during the Plantation Period. They were built by carpenters of various nationalities (using standardized lumber mostly from the Pacific Northwest). These builders had been trained by Hawaiian Sugar Planters Association (HSPA) companies, and after leaving those companies went to work as independent contractors. They continued to build in this style (and make innovations to it) because they shared a common construction and building vocabulary. Tools employed by the carpenters were a mixture of standard implements imported from the United States and the home countries of the immigrants themselves.

The primary hallmark of the style, "single wall" construction, consisted of vertical boards nailed to wood plates and sills. The vertical board faces were both the exterior and interior wall surfaces of a building. They were either of plank frame (no corner posts) or box frame (corner posts) construction, both of which were of New England origins, and were used for all classes of buildings in Hawai'i. The board-and-batten exterior wall finish came from the need to cover the interstices between vertical boards before the use of tongue-and-groove or shiplap boards rendered the vertical battens unnecessary. Imported windows and doors (designed for balloon frame construction) either projected out from the exterior wall or, if flush with the exterior wall, projected into the interior of the building.

The HSPA, under pressure to improve worker housing by the Territorial Board of Health, standardized buildings plans and construction in 1920 and continued to use “single wall” construction with the following modifications: (a) wood posts could be used at corners (box framing); and/or (b) wood studs could be used sparingly, positioned on either sides of doors and window jambs or at the intersections of interior partitions.

A variety of standardized floor plans for dwellings and barracks were produced, surmounted by hipped or gable-on-hip roofs commonly covered with totan, corrugated metal. For commercial buildings, stores, and theaters, gabled or shed roofs, also covered in corrugated metal, were the most common, terminating in a vertical wood board parapet which also carried the signage of an enterprise and increased the buildings height when viewed from the street. Institutional buildings were primarily U-Plans or their derivatives.

After World War II, when the lengths of wall board were reduced by mainland manufacturers, two vertical boards were necessary to span the distance between sill and plate which made it necessary to apply a horizontal wood trim or “belt board” to cover the joint on the exterior wall surface and a horizontal wood nailer on the interior wall surface. After 1960 balloon frame construction, consisting of regularly-spaced wood studs, was uniformly adopted when the building codes in Hawai'i were modified, but the traditional exterior cladding of vertical boards or board-and-batten finish, along with horizontal belt boards and hipped or gable-on-hip roofs were retained. Even in the 21st century, especially for domestic architecture, the exterior finish associated with “Plantation Vernacular” has remained popular and still is being built (Solamillo, 2013).

Ironically, many of the original plantation-era buildings are disappearing. This is due to a number of reasons.

- Plantation era buildings were minimalist in design and use of materials. The reasons for this included difficulties in obtaining lumber and other components and changing plantation technologies that required periodic relocation of structures. Such structures are easy to demolish.
- The primary use of wood for walls and corrugated iron for roofing during the plantation era also limited the retention of early plantation construction, as wood is subject to termites and rot and corrugated roofs rust. Periodic maintenance, such as painting and parts replacement, is essential in the humid climate of Hawai'i.
- Accommodating Hawai'i's expanding population requires greater density, thus increasing pressures for land redevelopment (especially on O'ahu). As most Hawai'i towns (such as Waipahu, Līhu'e, Lahaina, and Hilo) originated in agricultural areas, their initial buildings suffer accordingly.
- The architecture of the plantations was also branded as "dated" in the post World War II popular mindset. Mass production, standardization and "Bauhaus" lack of ornamentation were the architectural focus of the 1950s and beyond, where many citizens of Hawai'i felt "new" designs physically represented an era of expanded employment opportunities outside the plantation hegemony. Plantation era commercial structures were even demonized as "slum structures" by government organizations such as the Honolulu Redevelopment Agency, which celebrated their demolition for new highways and urban renewal.
- Vernacular buildings, because they were not the work of noted architects or considered architectural treasures in themselves, were overlooked until their numbers dwindled enough to make them unique.

Honoka'a's buildings are rapidly becoming unique.

The Hotel Honokaa Club is especially unique because, although it is a plantation era commercial structure, it does not have a false front. As the building housed two distinct functions, entertainment and hotel, its architecture is more subdued. The size of the footprint identifies it as institutional, but the building's visual elevation from the street shows period design influences from typical Hāmākua plantation housing and Japanese teahouse architecture. The building externally sports a boxy shape, gabled totan roof, large eaves, tongue-and-groove siding, wood framed double hung windows, sliding wood windows and central lanai. Internal are period climate controls in the forms of high ceilings to allow warm air to rise, transom windows to facilitate cross ventilation, and an atrium to allow light into the main and basement levels; period design elements include exposed totan roofing in the stairway ceilings, canec ceilings, brick chimney, bead molding, exposed internal girts, wood floors, wood stairs, galvanized pipe handrails, corner wash basins in bedrooms, metal shower stalls and octagonal tile shower floors. Sliding shoji doors are also provided to facilitate opening additional space for large entertainment functions or close off space for more private activities.

The building has been expanded and altered over time, most significantly with the 1948 second-story addition away from Māmane Street on the makai side and the interior remodeling of the entertainment areas.

Although the building and grounds have undergone these changes, the Hotel Honokaa Club retains its historic integrity in terms of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association. It is a good example of a modest commercial hotel and restaurant designed and constructed in the vernacular building tradition of a rural plantation town in Hawai'i during the early part of the 20th century.

Hotel Honokaa Club is thus significant on the State Level under both Criteria A and C for the Hawai'i and National Registers of Historic Places.
